Telstar skiing Boys strong, but no girls turned out

By WENDY HANSCOM

Telstar's alpine ski program has a balance problem. The team is strong and deep on the boys' side, but nonexistent on the girls' side. Only one girl turned out for alpine this year, according to coach Tom Remington, and she quit because she didn't want to be the only girl skiing all season.

"I thought I had four or five girls lined up before the season started," Remington said, "but a couple of them joined the snowboard club and a couple just didn't want to ski."

There's some good girls' prospects in the middle school, the coach said, but it looks like some of them will end up attending Gould Academy.

The boys' team has better numbers -- 16 boys are hitting the slopes this season. But two first-class skiers, sophomore Parker Gray and freshman Bret Harvey, opted for Gould.

Local skiers defecting to Gould is hurting the program, Remington said, but he's not worried about fielding a competitive boys' team.

"I've got the most freshmen I've ever had," he said. "I can't say there's any one kid who stands out as a big potential, but there's no way to really tell when they're freshman."

This year's freshmen are Eric Mills, Josh Dakin, Gray on Wakefield, Matt Koskela, Macy Blasdell and Tim Nirkerson.

The squad also has several seasoned veterans.

If Kevin Rosenberg stays healthy, he should be able to take a state medal, Remington said.

"Barring injuries (and he's nursing a bad leg now) Kevin should be a contender for an individual state title in the giant slalom and slalom," the coach said. "Over the last six years Kevin has worked very hard. Once the season gets going he races six or seven times a week. All that hard work should pay off by the end of this season."

In addition to racing for Telstar against state Class A teams, Rosenberg skis in the U.S. Ski Association's eastern-sanctioned races.

Other returning Rebel skiers include juniors Clint Wakefield, Adam Newell, Josh Adams, Curt Thurston, Adam Luxton, Ryan Seames and Jeff Angevine and sophomores Tim Adams and Jason Billings.

Telstar can race six men in February's state meet, Remington said. Rosenberg and Wakefield should take a spot for the Rebels, he said, leaving Newell, Adams, Thurston, Luxton, Billings and Adams battling it out for the other four spots.

The boys' team has raced once this season. The Rebels came in third against Edward Little and Oxford Hills, schools with probably the two best ski programs in the state, Remington said.

Rosenberg placed highest for the Rebels, finishing sixth.

Telstar boys should be competitive in the Mountain Valley Conference. The Rebels are the only state Class A competitors in the league. "We'll be competitive in the MVC," Remington said. "But our team goal is to finish in the top six at the state meet."

For the girls, however, it may be a long time before Telstar can field a team.

"I really don't know what our future holds," Remington said. "There's only one eighth-grade girl in the middle school who seems like a serious skier."

Gould's increased emphasis on skiing, Sunday River's freestyle racing program and snowboarding clubs are taking some prospects away from the Telstar team, Remington said.

The school may be forced to compensate for availability of less talent by not repeating in 1996 to compete in state Class A.

The rest of the school's sport teams compete in state Class C. The ski team would be more competitive in class C, the coach said.

Local aviator awarded Bronze Star

Lt. Tim Kersey

in Somalian firefight

U.S. Navy Lt. Timothy M. Kersey has been awarded an Air Medal, with Bronze Star, for his "heroic achievement" in an October 1993 aerial engagement in Mogadishu, Somalia.

Two American helicopters were downed in the firefight, 18 Americans died and 75 were wounded. Army pilot Michael Durant, a Berlin, N.H. native, was taken captive during the battle, then beaten and held for 11 days before being returned to the United States.

Kersey was a co-pilot on temporary duty with Patrol Squadron Special Projects Unit One for Operation Continue Hope in Somalia.

His role in the completion of a combat reconnaissance mission, which provided critical tactical intelligence data to operational commanders, earned him the award.

Kersey was lauded by J. M. Boorda, Chief of Naval Operations, for his ability to perform under pressure, which ultimately saved American lives.

"He significantly contributed to precise identification of the target site, relaying immediate activity reports to ground forces commanders and identifying potential ground ambush sites," wrote Boorda in Kersey's citation. "During the ensuing fire fight, the aircrew provided ground forces with clear routes of ingress and egress and assumed search and rescue on-scene commander responsibilities for two downed American helicopters... Kersey's exceptional professionalism, courage, and loyal devotion to duty in the face of hazardous flying conditions reflected great credit upon himself and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Further information on the mission is still classified.

Kersey is the son of Tim and Judy Kersey of Bethel. He is stationed in Barbers Point, Hawaii, and flies with Patrol Squadron Special Projects Unit Two. He is a 1982 graduate of Telstar High School and a 1986 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

The passing year brought many blessings

Jobs returning, businesses growing

It got a little bit easier to earn a living last year.

Unemployment in the Rumford labor market (which includes most of SAD 44) dropped by nearly a quarter over the year -- from 9.2 percent in October 1993 to 7.1 percent in the same month of 1994 (the October figures are the latest available).

The improvement was not due to any single factor, but to moderate growth in most areas of the local economy, according to Gerard Denning, a senior analyst with the Maine Department of Labor.

You didn't have to look far to see the signs of fresh economic vitality. New buildings were going up, older buildings were being renovated, and a number of new businesses opened, including a book store and franchise pizza shop.

It was a good year also for weather sticks and World Cup T-shirts, and over the summer there were plenty of golfers, conventioners and mountain bikers in town.

There was even fresh activity at the Col. Dyke Airport, where Bethel Air Service was doing a brisk business in scenic flights, flying lessons and charter hires. A crash last month took one of the BAS planes out of commission, but both the flight instructor and student walked away from the mishap unharmed, and by the next day student pilots were in the air again.

But the big news on the local economic scene was once again Sunday River Ski Resort, which logged a record 528,000 skier visits last season -- despite a slow start brought about by bitterly cold weather at the beginning of the year.

Sunday River opened a new mountain area, Jordan Bowl, this season, with a new high-speed quad and six new trails. The skiway already has permits to add three additional lifts to the area and up to a total of 250 acres of trails. An access road and base lodge are slated for next year, and long-term plans include condominiums and at least one hotel.

The resort also purchased 7,000 acres to the west of its current lift and trail system. The new land is earmarked for some form of future expansion, but for the immediate future it will be managed as timberlands.

The local Bethel Bancorp. also expanded this year, purchasing Key Bank branches in Richmond, Lisbon Falls, Mechanic Falls and Buckfield.

And Bethel is due to have a third local banking option next year, when Norway Savings Bank moves into a new branch on lower Main Street.

Bethel Station chugs along

All that remains from that ambitious plan -- at least as far as the current ski season is concerned -- is the train station, which is now scheduled for completion sometime early next year.

The major stalling points were delays in obtaining the various local, state and federal regulatory approvals needed for the project.

But the three general partners in Bethel Station -- Les Otten, Grant Wilson, and Heinie Merrill -- insist the construction lag did not threaten the economic viability of the project.

The developers cleared their most crucial hurdle in February, when Bethel voters approved $501,352, the land-for-buildings swap that was viewed as essential if the project was to go ahead.

By approving the measure, voters agreed to swap a 6.2 acre parcel of town-owned land in exchange for a new town highway garage and salt/sand shed -- $350,000 worth of construction that will be paid for entirely by the developers. The developers also agreed to relocate the ambulance barn and recycling center, both of which were located on the town-owned parcel.

With approval for the land swap in hand, the developers went ahead with designing the project -- but without original architect Winton

Health center director stays but salary is reduced

By EILEEN M. ADAMS

Bethel Area Health Center's executive director will keep his position, the center's board of directors decided last week. And although George Larson will continue with all the duties and responsibilities previously assigned to his position, the board decided to cut his salary and schedule a semiannual review of his work.

Board President Wende Gray said a majority of the board agreed with the decision, though she declined to reveal the vote's breakdown. She also declined to specify the amount of the salary cut or the original salary figure.

Larson, executive director of the center for the past 4 1/2 years, came

RESPONSIBILITY ACCEPTED

To the Editor:

George Larson has always accepted full responsibility for his actions as executive director of the Bethel Area Health Center.

In consideration of his past performance in providing a strong fiscal management structure and developing a primary care medical team second to none, George will continue as executive director of the Health Center.

In consideration of his failure to administer established Health Center policies, George will receive a salary reduction and his performance will be subject to review by the Board.

SAFER FAMILIES THANKS

To the Editor:

At this time of year, a lot of people go out of their way to be helpful. I want to recognize a group of people that have consistently gone out of their way to help Safer Families Programs, the local service for victims of domestic violence. The volunteers and Advisory Board members give countless hours to the program and are what make it work. They, along with many wonderful volunteers from Sunday River Ski Resort, recently hosted a successful fund-raiser -- Monte Carlo Night at Sunday River. The evening raised enough money to maintain the hotline for another six months. Everyone had fun and gave to a good cause. The event will be repeated next November, so plan to attend now!

Thank you to all of the people who gave up a Friday evening to volunteer and help. You are the reason that victims of domestic violence have a toll-free hotline to call -- and support in court and through groups. Thanks.

DEADBEATS HIDING BEHIND AFDC

To the Editor:

Are all you hard-working folks, especially you single moms of Western Maine, aware that income-earning, deadbeat parents can be exempt from support collection?

From what we understand, all they have to do is be a member of an AFDC household. So, they can work, earn a living, be exempt from support collection and receive supplemental welfare benefits.

How do all you moms and the rest of the taxpayers out there feel about this? Do you really like the idea that ex-husbands can work and earn a living and be exempt from support collection because they can duck their responsibilities by hiding behind welfare laws in this state?

We think it's stupid! If they have an income, they must be made to pay something towards the children they've left behind. The state cannot be allowed to let them ignore their responsibilities and reap the benefits of welfare while they do it.

We've already contacted our representative, John Underwood, and asked him to look into this and to try to change it. We want to urge everyone to write governor-elect King and to call and write their state representatives and senators and ask for their help in changing the laws.

Bethel Town Office

On behalf of the Board of Selectmen and the town employees, I hope you all had a safe and pleasant Christmas Day and that the New Year will bring you happiness and good health.

The train station will be closed Sunday, Jan. 1, and be open Monday, Jan. 2, instead. The Town Office will be closed Monday, Jan. 2, to observe the holiday. The Town Office will also be closed Monday, Jan. 16, for Martin Luther King Day. The Selectmen's meetings normally scheduled for the first and third Monday evenings of the month will be held on the first and third Tuesday evenings in January.

The Oxford County Solid Waste Corporation reminds us that wrapping paper is not recyclable. They do promise, however, that flat (non-corrugated) cardboard recycling will be coming on line soon. That means that cereal boxes and shoe boxes will be recyclable, along with junk mail, including window envelopes. And don't forget to shovel a path to your compost pile; some composting can be done all year long.

Bethel extends a grateful welcome to Newry in the search for answers about Pay-Per-Bag handling of solid waste. A regional approach to this issue may simplify the analysis and generate a more positive outcome. You may recall that the selectmen in Bethel have explored volume-based trash fees in the past and have put the issue on the work plan for this spring. The idea is that people will pay according to the trash they generate, according to the value of their real estate. The largest drawback is the fear that people will dump their trash in the woods rather than pay the fee. We'll go deeper into the why's and how's in future articles.

Scott, who was dropped in March in favor of Harriman Associates of Auburn.

In June the town Planning Board accepted the design for Phase One as "conditionally complete," but that finding was appealed by Paradise Road resident Kathy Hooke, an outspoken opponent of the project.

Hooke charged that "The finding of 'conditional completeness' is but one example of how the Planning Board is being put under pressure to rush the review process in order to meet the developer's needs. Inventorizing ways to get around clear procedures set forth in the Site Plan Review Ordinance is hardly consistent with the repeated assurances the community received prior to last winter's vote that this project would have to comply with all relevant local, state and federal laws, ordinances, and permitting procedures."

Hooke eventually dropped her appeal, and the Planning Board went on in August to approve, unanimously, plans for Phase One (with individual buildings to be reviewed subsequently).

But not all was going the way the developers would have liked. At a special Town Meeting that same month voters rejected a proposition that the town take ownership of the new train station and lease it back to the developers.

That vote forced a further redesign (and downsizing) of the station building, delaying the start of construction still further.

But at that same Town Meeting, voters declined to overrule a 3-2 vote by the town selectmen to use a lot at the Airport Industrial Park for the new highway garage site. That allowed work on the garage and salt sand shed to finally begin, and by October the shed was in use, with the highway garage expected to be ready this week (some loose ends still need to be tied up).

Developers and Bethel officials hope the state and federal governments will shoulder much of the cost of successfully integrating the massive project into the infrastructure of the town. In November that money began to flow, when the town learned that it had received a $283,000 federal grant to fund construction of a system of sidewalks and landscaping linking the current village with the Bethel Station project and points beyond.

The money will also be used to construct a new cantilevered bike/walkway/snowmobile bridge next to the existing Route 2 bridge over the Androscoggin River.

Sometime in mid-1995 the town should learn if it has been successful in its application for a much larger, $1.5 million economic development grant for infrastructure work.

However, a delay in that funding (it was originally expected to be available early in 1994) led the developers last month to ask the town for $340,000 in Tax Increment Financing for infrastructure work. A referendum vote on that request has been scheduled for February 14 -- the anniversary of the successful land-swap vote.

under scrutiny when it was learned that a man he hired in February as a clinical psychologist for the center was not licensed to practice psychology in Maine.

When the discovery was made in November that Charles D.H. Gill, 58, had misrepresented his credentials, Larson fired him.

Gill has been charged with 16 misdemeanor counts of unlawful practice of psychology and one count of felony theft. He remains incarcerated in Oxford County jail in lieu of $150,000 cash bail.

Gill is scheduled to appear before the grand jury on Jan. 22.

Gray said Larson's salary cut goes into effect Jan. 1. She said he agreed to the board's decision.

But threat seen to wood supply

The local wood-products industry continued its rebound in 1994, even as some people in the industry expressed increasing concern over the long-term availability of raw material.

With a nationwide recovery increasing demand for wood products, employment at local mills continued to climb.

And businesses proved confident enough to again pour capital into their operations. P.H. Chadbourn Company, Bethel Furniture Stock and Kendall Dowell in Bethel all undertook significant expansions during the year, as did Gilbert Manufacturing in Locke Mills and Penley Corp. of West Paris.

But while demand appeared solid, there were definite clouds on the supply side of the horizon.

In August, the U.S. Forest Service, which manages the White Mountain National Forest, announced a harvesting plan that called for selling off only 9.6 million board feet next year. That figure was roughly one-third of the current year's figure of 29 MMBF.

Leon Favreau, co-owner of Bethel Furniture Stock in West Bethel and president of the National Multiple Use Association, termed the proposed harvesting level for fiscal year 1995 "just absurd."

During the 1980s, Favreau noted, timber harvests averaged 38 MMBF annually, and the WMNF is rated as having a sustainable yield of 70 MMBF annually.

He characterized the proposed cutback as yet another step toward environmentalists' goal of "closing down the White Mountain National Forest" to timber harvesting.

Reggie Gilbert of Bearpaw Lumber Corp. said the cutting limits "could close us down in this region." The situation, he said, is becoming "dangerously similar to what we saw in the Pacific Northwest."

But Wayne Millen, an assistant district ranger in the local Evans Notch District, WMNF, said federal budget cuts, not environmentalist pressure, have led to the harvest cutbacks.

The northern New England congressional delegation pressed hard to have the harvesting quota raised, and in November the Forest Service announced that an increased funding allocation for the WMNF would allow for the harvesting of 18 million board feet during the 1995 fiscal year.

Representatives of the region's forest-products industry praised the lobbying effort and the harvesting increase, but they also expressed disappointment that the increase was not larger.

"I'm disappointed, but not surprised," said Favreau. "I think (the Forest Service) came up with the 9.6 million figure just to make us feel good about the 18 million figure," Favreau said.

Also in 1994, The Northern Forest Lands Council released its final recommendations for maintaining "traditional patterns of land ownership and use" in the 26-million acre forest.

Release of the report completed a process begun more than six years ago, a process which the wood-products industry originally feared could pose a serious threat to private ownership and management of forest lands.

But the final 37 recommendations that survived the NFLC process were relatively tame, focussing on four broad topics: fostering stewardship of private land, protecting exceptional land, strengthening the economies of rural communities, and promoting well-informed decisions.

Reaction to the report was mixed. Industry representatives applauded many of the recommendations; while the environmental community greeted them with dutiful, but distinctly lukewarm, praise. Some environmental groups began almost immediately to call for stronger action, including the establishment of a Maine Woods National Park.

Favreau praised a number of the recommendations, including those calling for reviewing the effectiveness of administrative regulations, simplifying and stabilizing the regulatory process, promoting natural-resources education for the public, and instituting a national excise tax on recreational equipment.

He also noted favorably that nearly all the recommendations call for action by the individual states rather than the federal government.

Favreau and many others have said one of the key benefits to come out of the process was that many local citizens had become involved, including at a "listening session" held in March at the Bethel Inn. Overall more than 800 people spoke at the various listening sessions, and 800 submitted written responses to the draft recommendations.

Some environmentalists joined in praising the consensus-building efforts of the council, but others were openly dismissive of the process, which they felt had been hijacked by the timber industry.

Activist Jamie Sayer termed the process "tragic." "The timber industry and its friends possessed sufficient political clout to obstruct honest, thorough inquiry by the Northern Forest Lands Council into the root cause of the region's ecological, economic, social and cultural crisis," Sayer wrote in The Northern Forest Forum.

THIS WEEK AT THE
Moses Mason
House

All members and friends are reminded that the next monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society will be held on Thursday, Jan. 5, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The feature for the program will be the annual "So You Think You Know Bethel" trivia contest. Anyone interested in attending is cordially invited to attend.

Those wishing to know the origins of "Mayville," for that section of Bethel immediately north of the river on Route 2, a letter to the Bethel Citizen from Ruby Clark Eldredge in 1955 is revealing: "In my girlhood it was known as the Twitchell Neighborhood but the number of families was reduced to be one (Samuel Twitchell's -- in 1994 now known as Douglass Place) and at Gould Academy we were called 'over the river' scholars. One day probably about 1885 a group of young folks went after Mayflowers near the brook above Mr. Hilliard Chapman's house (in 1994 this would be on the Northwest Bethel Road nearly opposite Richard and Grace Douglass' new house) and drank at Mayflower falls. We were but one Twitchell (Miss Florence) and she agreed with the rest that we needed a new name. Since it was May Day and we were after Mayflowers and were at Mayflower falls, we thought MAYville was appropriate and agreed to date our letters Mayville, Maine and ask our folks to do the same, and to speak of our community as Mayville, hence it became recognized. One letter mother wrote which went to the dead letter office in Washington was returned to her although only the letter heading said Mayville, Maine. So I too hope that the name is not to be lost or forgotten."

Mrs. Eldredge need not have worried in 1955, for in 1993 the U.S. Route 2/Route 26 route through Mayville was officially designated as "Mayville Road" by the Town of Bethel.

Almost 300 persons have given nearly $8,000 to the Bethel Historical Society's 1994 Annual Fund Campaign to date. Among the latest contributors are Adelia A. Waterhouse, Bethel; Roxanne Twitchell Sly, Brooklin, in memory of Adelia B. Twitchell, Sr.; Sarah S. Tucker, Boston, Mass., in memory of Caroline McMillan; Ethel Chapman, West Bethel. Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity. Contribution in memory of a loved one or friend as well as in honor of individuals may still be made to the 1994 fund until December 31. Please make tax deductible contributions payable to the society and send them to P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

Planning Board short-handed

WOODSTOCK--There are seven seats on the town Planning Board but only four members, following the resignation last week of chairman Bryan Dunham. Dunham cited a change in his work schedule as his reason for leaving the board. If the board is to have a quorum, all four remaining members will now have to show up for each meeting. "We've had half a dozen people go on and off the board in the past year and a half," said Town Manager Vern Maxfield. The town has a one-term limit on Planning Board members, which will prevent the reappointment of Margaret Hand, whose term expires in March.

Water District loan authorized

ANDOVER--The directors of the Andover Water District voted 2-1 last week to authorize a $295,500 loan for financing a state-mandated water system. The system was supposed to have been started by Oct. 31, 1994, and the town could face fines of up to $5,000 per day or a court penalty of $25,000 a day for non-compliance. Director Hal Frazier said that authorizing the loan would demonstrate to the Environmental Protection Agency that the town is "doing something" to advance the new system.

Electric rates put on 'autopilot'

AUGUSTA--The Maine Public Utilities Commission has approved a plan which allows Central Maine Power Company to raise its electric rates without an annual PUC review. The plan requires that the increases be lower than the previous year's inflation rate, minus an offset for improvements in CMP efficiency. The plan also gives the company new flexibility in setting prices for different groups of customers. The new arrangement was negotiated by the utility and several groups representing the public and people especially sensitive to rate hikes. CMP president David Flanagan termed the new arrangement: "A great step forward for electric customers, for CMP's ability to compete and for Maine's economic climate."

NOVA funding study underway

RUMFORD--The Northern Oxford Vocational Area Cooperative Board appointed an ad hoc committee last week to study if the vo. tech. program's assessment formula should be changed. SAD44 officials asked for the study. The district pays about 23 percent of NOVA's budget, but sends only a few students. The committee will meet Jan. 11, and should report their findings to the NOVA board on Jan. 24.

Hot dog stand put on hold

NEWRY--The town's Planning Board tabled an application last week from a West Bethel man for a hot dog stand on the Sunday River Access Road. This is the third time Robert Dempster's application has been tabled. Planners want more time to study how the stand would affect the flow of

Skier dies at Saddleback

RANGELEY--An Augusta teen-ager died Friday at Saddleback Ski and Summer Lake Preserve when he lost control on an expert ski trail and crashed into a tree. Jean Peterson, 17, died of closed head injuries. The condition of the trail was good and did not contribute to the accident, according to Franklin County Chief Deputy Sheriff Lee Dalrymple. Saddleback Manager Tom McAllister said Peterson was "just going too fast and was out of control."

Train track trespassing dangerous

Across the nation last year, 523 people died while trespassing on railroad beds (the figure does not include suicides). Most of those killed by trains were walking, on bikes, motorbikes, ATVs or snowmobiles. Many apparently did not hear the oncoming train because of the noise of their own vehicles or because they were wearing headphones. By comparison, 626 people died in vehicles at railway/road crossings, according to a report in the Boston Globe.

IRS targets tips

The Internal Revenue Service district directors of the New England states have joined forces to combat the tip income gap, which is estimated to exceed $100 million in New England and $1.7 billion nationally. Since 1966, tipped employees have been required by law to report their tips to their employers at least once a month. Studies show that on average less than half the tips are being reported. The IRS is asking restaurant owners to enter into an agreement to ensure proper tip reporting. This program allows an establishment and tipped employees to enter into an agreement to properly report tips as an alternative to a tip audit. Anyone who is responsible for the tax returns of a food or beverage establishment or who has a question concerning tip agreements may call Laura Thibau at 622-8426 or Linda Gordius at 780-3503.

Our brain cells: use 'em or lose 'em

Contrary to common perception, aging need not lead to a decline in mental functioning. Researchers have found that with training, healthy people in their 70s and 80s can still sharpen their mental skills. And while adult humans cannot grow new brain cells, lifelong mental exercise stimulates the growth of other forms of neural connections. Such exercise can even reduce the symptoms of Alzheimer's disease, according to a study presented recently at a meeting of the Society for Neuroscience.

From the Bethel Police log: Bartender takes after fake ID users

During a routine business check Monday of the Sunday River Brewery, police spotted a bartender chasing two women through the parking lot. The bartender told police the two juveniles had tried to use false I.D.s to purchase alcohol. Police spoke to the two juveniles and the parent of one girl. Both girls were released, pending charges of possession of a fake I.D.

Saturday, Dec. 24

At 8:57 a.m. police responded to a report of a man and woman yelling loudly at each other at a Main Street apartment. Police suggested the squabbling couple cool off with some time away from each other, and transported the woman to work.

Friday, Dec. 23

At 6:15 a.m. a Bethel man reported hitting a deer on the Sunday River Road. The deer could not be located. Damage to the man's vehicle was estimated at $1,500.

Thursday, Dec. 22

At 6:25 a.m. another Bethel man reported hitting a deer on the Sunday River Road. In this case, the man had thrown the deer in his truck and continued on to work. Police asked him to come into the station to tag the deer and fill out the appropriate paperwork.

At 12 p.m. police arrested Melinda Manjoura, 26, of North Waterford on two outstanding warrants from Oxford County Court.

Wednesday, Dec. 21

At 10:35 a.m. Sports Outlet on the Sunday River Road reported that while store employees were busy with customers, someone entered the store's office and removed $600 in cash from a money bag.

At 4:41 p.m. a Backstage employee reported that an intoxicated man the bar had refused to serve alcohol was refusing to leave. Police tried to help the man find a ride home to Bryant Pond, with no success. The man eventually left the bar. At 5:33 p.m. #1 Video store employee reported the same man was hanging around the store. Police gave the man a ride to the Locke Mills/Bethel town line.

Trusts betrayed, petty crime increases

Con men, burglars, vandals and drug dealers kept local, state and federal police and officials busy this year.

The Bethel Area Health Center was rocked in November, when health center officials learned they had hired a fraud.

Charles D.H. Gill Jr. of the Bailey Road was arrested on 16 counts of unlawful practice, a Class E misdemeanor, and one Class B felony charge of theft by deception.

He is currently being held in the Oxford County Jail. The grand jury will consider an indictment in January.

Gill had worked from February until November as a clinical psychologist and director of the Human Services Division at the BAHC. But he has no degree in psychology and is not licensed to practice in the mental health field in Maine.

Gill had also been twice convicted in Ohio of practicing physiology without a license.

A con man of a different sort was returned to jail in August 1993, and in March 1994 a judge decided to keep

The community observed Christmas at the Ladies Aid Building Monday evening. Outside, a tree and the building were lavishly decorated. Inside, a tree was dancing with lights, presents tucked around the base and across a large table. Gift plates, stockings for the children and baskets of goodies for senior citizens were nicely arranged here.

The audience filled most of the chairs set out between the tables which lined both sides as Amy Geil began the program with a brief reminder of the origin and reason for Christmas, followed by the song, "Silent Night." Amy asked the men to sing the words, "Holy Night." Their deeper voices gave an added warmth to the beautiful song. Trained and coached by Laurie Brown, each child spoke a piece loudly and clearly enough to be heard and enjoyed by each parent and friend. Amy led some more singing, including "Drummer Boy." The men were called to the "dum, dum," and one man with a deep, rich voice went into the cellar for some drumming.

The audience had each been given a slip of paper on which to write his or her name. Those were put into a hat. Was it for a prize? No. Twelve names were drawn and those people were asked to come forward and stand in line facing the audience while everyone sang "Twelve Days of Christmas." The first player was given a pear and told he might take a bite at the line, "A partridge in a pear tree." His first bites were generous, soon became nibbles, then feigned so the song and pear would finish together. Some of the actors performed body movements, such as "lords a-leaping," "Ladies dancing," and "French hens." Some had props as the one with a stuffed cow pinned to his shirt. Bossy had two appendages from which the actor made as if to invoke milk on the "maids a-milking" line.

The most moving and significant part of the program was the portrayal of the Biblical Christmas story. Laurie narrated, while the youngsters, with a few exceptions, acted their parts in silence. Joseph and Mary went among the audience asking for a room. Receiving none, they went to the front where a curtain was drawn revealing a manger. After the baby was wrapped in swaddling clothes, placed in the nest of straw, the wise men arrived. They went to the back of the room searching for the Christ Child. As the lights went out, they discovered the star suspended on a pulley line stretched from one end of the room to the other. A flashlight attached to the line illuminated the star as it traveled to the stable, the audience following with their eyes the wise men following on foot. The audience was unusually quiet with only a few "oohs" and murmurs which made the silence more meaningful. The wise men dropped to their knees at the manger. That simple portrayal of the event which led to salvation of whosoever will, touched hearts.

Vi Bernier's father, John Arata of Winthrop, spent several days in the hospital following a long-lasting nose bleed. It was discovered that the stuff which causes clotting was not retained in his blood in sufficient amount.

Laurie Brown entertained several family members with dinner and tree Saturday. Guests included the Phil Korhonen's of Bethel; Roger Bernier family of Norton, Vt.; Alan and Ryan Korhonen of South Paris; Joe Bernier family of Lovell; Jerry Bernier of Bethel; and Arline Bernier of Upton.

Dope and Babe Goodrum observed Christmas with their family having dinner in Berlin and at their home in Upton for the afternoon.

The weather turned warm again and most of the snow cover disappeared.

Ron and Betty Jordan were in town Wednesday. Ron is improving following a serious operation and is in good spirits.

Classes taught by Jeannette Baldridge at the Learning Center in Bethel were invited to a holiday feast and fun on Wednesday. Attending from town were John, Maria, Lisa and Michelle Aron and Arline Bernier. The authors received notice of an exciting new publication called "Out of the Cradles," which will make its debut in March.

By ELEANOR NELSON

Marcel Longpre has been doing work for Albert Nelson this past week. We can't seem to get along without him. Eddie Niemi also did work for us.

Our sympathy and prayers are with the family of Frances Heath, also with the family of Merton Blood, who passed away last week. They were both our good neighbors when we lived in Lovell many years ago. They were good friends and will be greatly missed.

Roy Johnson reported that he saw what looked like a ring-necked pheasant on Route 5 near his home. Several others have seen it, too.

On Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 6 p.m., the D.U.V. Tent 19 met at the Chef's Table for their annual Christmas dinner, meeting and exchange of gifts around the pretty lighted tree. There were only six of us, but we had a good time. Gifts were brought in for the Togus Hospital box, which will be delivered to them soon.

On Thursday evening there was a potluck supper and a Community Christmas Tree at the Church vestry. It was a delicious supper, and the children had such a good time, especially when Santa Claus showed up. Miriam Higgins played the piano with people singing Christmas carols, which added to the festivities.

Ralph and Harriett Brown attended the Republican's December supper and meeting on Thursday, Dec. 15, at Dixfield. There were about 40 people present and election of officers was made at that time.

On Saturday night, Albert and Carole Nelson got a group of about 30 people together and went out singing Christmas songs to several homes in the Stoneham area. They served refreshments afterward with a social time. I think this is a yearly tradition now, and it's nice for the young folks to get together.

Priscilla Gammon has a nice new car. Don't forget your doggie's license by Jan. 1. We miss the Christmas tree lights at the Rescue Barn this year.

Edie and Lois Niemi entertained at a family Christmas dinner on Saturday. Guests were Dianne and Tim and Angela Mowatt of Windham, also Donna Niemi of Portland, James and Ryan Cote and Bonnie Brown of Portland.

Hang in there! I just got more news. Matthew Nelson from Cub Scout Pack 155 was the top salesman in his group and tops in the Casco District. He sold $1,029.50 worth of popcorn products. He received a beautiful trophy and made many people happy with their purchases.

Tuesday evening, I had the pleasure of attending the Winter Music Program at the Molly Ockett Middle School. The band was under the direction of Sandra Massee. They did a wonderful job -- reminds me of Lawrence Welk -- wunnerful, wunnerful! Molly Nelson and Crystal Wallace were in the chorus of 75 members.

Knight Riders' annual sliding party is Jan. 1 at Earl and Jean Littlefield's, with potluck supper at 5:30 there.

Franklin Grange 124 met on Monday with a 6:30 potluck supper, regular meeting, and a Christmas program. Twenty-eight members and two guests were present. A new member was voted on. A bill was received for the grange's part in the new sewer system. The program was as follows: opening thought, "What is Christmas, by Bertha Benoit; song by all; the Christmas story in responsive reading from Matthew 2:1-11 and Luke 1:8-20; Lettie Brooks received her 70-year certificate and seal; reading by Bertha Benoit; song by Harry Boyer; reading, "A letter to Santa"; Lettie Brooks; Dot Canwell and Richard Felt played music; Joe Yates had a reading, "Just before Christmas"; closing thought; closing song; Annie Crockett got the toaster oven; Donald Bennett, W.B., the lamp stick; and Lucien White, the pillow. The next meeting will be held Jan. 16.

Happy New Year to all.

West Paris

By MIRIAM INMAN

The West Paris Hunter's Club held their annual ham supper at the end of the hunting season. After the meal, the dishes and tables were cleaned by the losing side. This was followed by a short business meeting conducted by President Craig Ryerson. The Russell Stevens Memorial Trophy was presented to his father, Gordon Stevens, for bagging a 170-pound, nine-point buck. He will also be one of the captains for next year. Keith Bernard will also have his name added to the trophy for his 185-pound, 10-point buck. For the first time ever in the club's history, a woman joined this year. She will be the other captain for next year. Slides were shown after the meeting. They were taken by Waino Heikkilä when he used to feed a herd of deer on his farm.

Special thanks go to Lloyd Poland and Randy at Trap Corner Store for all their help in putting on the supper. The homemade biscuits were especially appreciated. Hope to see you all next year.

West Paris Historical Society met on Monday evening with 17 present. A short business meeting was held at which time the upcoming public supper on Jan. 2 was discussed. Committees were named. The next meeting will be on Jan. 16. After the meeting a sing-along of Christmas music was enjoyed with Lois Ellingwood at the piano. Gifts were exchanged and a variety of refreshments were sampled. We even had homemade ice cream furnished by the president.

A Christmas party was held last Sunday at the home of Nestor and Rachel (Chase) Ruokolainen. There were 24 in attendance.

The Ryerson Christmas party was held Saturday night at Perry and Anna Ryerson's in Wayne. Those attending were hosts Perry and Anna, Kyle and Chad Ryerson; David and Carol Beleski; Craig and Donald Ryerson; Darlene Pilgrim and children Billy, Bobby and Jennifer; Lisa, Duane, Matthew, Melanie and Casey Ryerson; Troy and Alex Ryerson; and Louie, Cleo and Emery Ryerson. Sandwiches, beverages, salad and soup were served.

Keith and Becky Ryerson are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Hannah Elizabeth. Grandparents are Craig Ryerson and Wanda Ryerson and great-grandparents are Cleo and Emery Ryerson.

There has been a lot on TV and in the papers about the Battle of the Bulge in 1944. I have taped and watched much of the news on it. My brother, Gerald Poland, was killed in this battle on Jan. 6, 1945. I was only a small child but remember some of the things about him. He was only 19 years old and not even through high school. This is said to be one of the worse battles the U.S. has ever fought.

Evelyn and James Dunn have left for destinations of Florida, then on to Arizona to visit our sister, and then on to California to spend the rest of the winter with their daughter Patrice.

School is out for a while. I'm going to miss Jessie Hart coming each morning to catch the bus for Telstar.

Everyone is talking, white Christmas, I, for one, do not care if it doesn't snow. My husband usually must work; he works for the MDOT and I worry about people traveling to family and friends for the holidays. I love the weather we've been having; maybe winter will forget us this year!

Larry Billings, curator of Woodstock Historical Society reports that he has given a small oil painting in shades of pink and gray to the society. Mr. Billings has also given a glass teapot and a tiny model house and a landscape in tones of yellow, green and bronze. He also adds that the society notes that the latest issue of Colonial Homes has a section on the Maine coast in it. Rebecca Ricker has given many photos to the society.

I hope everyone had a nice Christmas and will enjoy a Happy New Year.

Andover

By KAREN McKAY

The Snow Valley Sno-Goers invite celebrators to join them Saturday night, New Year's Eve, at the Andover Town Hall for an evening of dancing to Blood Relations. The band will play 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Andover Elementary School sixth-grade is holding a bottle drive on Saturday, Jan. 7. The snow date is Jan. 14. To arrange a pick-up of donations or for more information call Mr. Emery at 392-3161. The AES students have collected recipes for a cookbook. The cookbook is available by contacting the school at 392-4381. Student of the week for Dec. 12-16 was kindergarten student Chris Mejias.

Navy-enlisted Toby Farrington traveled home from Norfolk, Va., to surprise his mother, Mrs. Maggie Farrington, with a holiday visit. Mrs. Linda Percival enjoyed a vacation in Crystal Beach, Fla., visiting with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Akers.

Hoping all enjoy a happy, healthy new year.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

I came across this poem this morning, Dec. 22, written by Cora Thurston.

I visited old friends today...

I didn't go on the new highway
But walked through woodlands clean and sweet

With pine needle carpets neat my feet.

Old squirrel pals stared boldly down

From lookouts high above the ground;

The sound of friends borne on the breeze

Sent them playing among the trees.

I reached my home, humming some words,

Close in my heart were songs of the birds.

What a happy visit, full of cheer.

With woodland friends that the heart holds dear."

Of course I didn't really go but the habit of daily walking has been instilled too deeply to easily put aside.

It has been four weeks since I have been for a real walk.

Even in winter sometimes I'd be heading across the pond for a visit to the swamp or Sanborn River. There is always something to see or hear: paw prints, strange snow sculptures made by the wind, the delicate intricacies of curved grasses etched against the snow and always the austere bare trees, the rich rose of pine grosbeaks against the whiteness of the snow. And have you ever heard the booming of the ice? How familiar they are to me.

I hope to go again when I am able.

Rene Curtis had her family Christmas party on Dec. 1, and there were 47. Several of them also came to see me.

I have had several callers this week. Kathy Curtis, Ann Holt, local: Lucy Wilcox, Sumner; Lettie Brooks, West Paris; Eleanor Inman.

The schools are on vacation so the children are having outdoor fun. Every one is prepared for Christmas Day. The candles are gleaming except mine, and the trees are pretty.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Happy Birth Day to Eleanor Davis on Jan. 2. Are you 50 or 60 yet? ha! "Hope you have many pleasant and happy returns of this wonderful day."

A New Year dawns upon the world, and with it comes the message to each one of us -- that all the mistakes and failures of the past days, all are blotted out, the darkness of fear, superstition and ignorance are disappearing, and we see things are but the result of our false concepts and erroneous conclusions. With the light of this New Year and new understanding, we realize that obstacles were not put in our way by any fate. They were but the creation of a confused thinking. So, on this New Year, may we cast aside all the worn-out material which has cluttered our minds, so that the New Year may be one of Light.. "I see all things New."

Four members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes one day last week: Betsy Clark, Karlene Bachelder, Bea Lowell and Olive Anderson. Betsy was high (again) on the triples and singles with one string of 101 and one of 100. She had two spares and two strikes, Karlene had one spare and one strike, and Bea had two spares.

The Sno-mobile club will meet Jan. 3, at 7 p.m. at the Town building.

A real community asset . . .

"A place where people can go to learn more about health issues will be a great asset to this community."

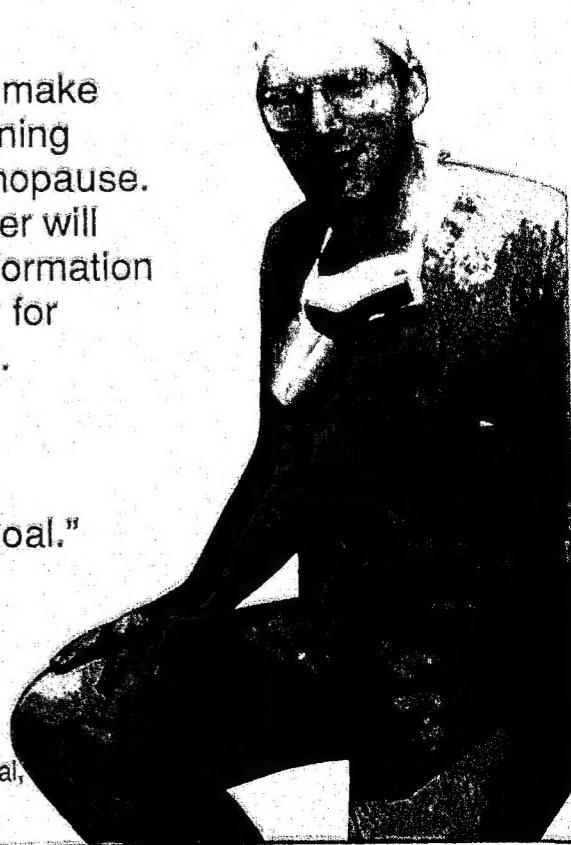

The community health education center and a therapeutic pool is the goal of this year's Annual Fund drive.

Every day, women need to make important decisions concerning pregnancy, fertility and menopause. The planned resource center will provide them with ready information they need, making it easier for them to make decisions . . . in partnership with their physicians.

Please help us reach our goal."

HEALTHY LIVING

Magnetic, What?

By Beverly Hendricks
Magnafit Wellness Systems, N. Bridgton

Have you ever heard of magnets to aid in healing, to help one get a full nights rest or just have extra energy during that mid-afternoon slump time? Well, if you haven't heard of this, don't feel alone. Most Western cultures haven't either. These are alternative methods to help with age old problems such as insomnia, sciatica, diabetic neuropathy, headaches, M.S., rheumatoid arthritis and new problems, such as stress, carpal tunnel and chronic fatigue syndrome - just to name a few.

Interestingly, magnetism in health is taught in international medical schools in Japan and Germany. They are approved medical devices in those countries and about 6 or 7 other countries but, not in the U.S.A. These are not scientifically proven in U.S.A. literature but world literature is replete with numerous works reviewing the utility of magnetic field therapy in double blind studies.

The application of magnets are far-reaching, ranging in size of a silver coin to an actual mattress for a wonderful night's sleep! Veterinarians use them for horses, horse blankets with magnets in them, and area magnets for knees, hocks, ankles, bowed tendons, back pain, and the stifle area. Dentists/orthodontists for TMJ. Coaches and athletes currently, 20 U.S.

Professional teams are using magnets, the list goes on and on... the list for many conditions is extensive. And the best thing about this type of modality is that it's non-invasive.

Soft Tissue Injuries. Conventional treatment recommends Rest, Ice, Compression and Elevation, or R.I.C.E. for short, followed by standard therapy such as infrared light, anti-inflammatory drugs, trigger point injections, micro-wave diathermy, ultrasound or electrical stimulation which are used to increase blood flow to an area. However, while all of these treatments eventually restore some degree of blood flow, they all require a considerable amount of time to be effective.

But now, the healing time for many sports injuries can be shortened with the use of magnets. A recent study conducted at M.I.T. proved conclusively that biomagnetic products increase bloodflow, allowing the bodies own healing processes to be accelerated, as concentrations of oxygen and other vital nutrients are brought to the cells.

Mending Bones: Magnets have been shown to penetrate the skin easily and flow deeply into the body through the skin, fat, nerves and bones to provide greater therapeutic effectiveness.

Applications of magnetic field therapy have been shown to be more than helpful in case studies from medical doctors, dentists and chiropractors. The cases include such conditions as muscle atrophy (muscle wasting), post-surgical knee reconstruction for a cruciate ligament replacement, low back pain, systemic arthritis, and sleep disorders.

An effect of a magnetic field that is well documented and supported by the laws of physics, is the enhancement of blood circulation and lymphatic drainage. Magnetic mattress users report increased warmth in the extremities during their sleep, and also report decreased muscle and joint pain.

The circulatory effect is documented in Faraday's Law and the Hall Effect, two long accepted laws of physics. They explain the principles by which the action of the magnetic polarities create ionic currents and patterns, which in turn increase the diameter of the blood vessels and ease the movement of the blood through those vessels.

Many years of research and clinical application have shown that the simple introduction of a magnetic field can provide stimulation and enhancement of the lymphatic system, as well as every cell within the body. The magnetic field does not heal; it merely aids the cells in creating an optimum environment in which the body can begin to heal itself. Between the circulatory, lymphatic and neurological effect, outstanding advances in health can be obtained.

FAT FREE POUND CAKE

Delicious served with fresh fruit!

2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup apple sauce
2 teaspoons lemon or orange extract
6-8 egg whites (depending on egg size)

Preheat oven to 325°. Spray with PAM and lightly flour 12 cup tube pan. Blend all cake ingredients on low speed until moistened. Scrape bowl and beat for 3 minutes on medium speed. Pour into pan and bake for 40-50 minutes until toothpick inserted comes out clean. Randomly prick top of cake with a toothpick. Brush with 1/2 of a glaze made from 1 1/2 cups of powdered sugar and 1/2 cup orange juice. Let cake sit for 10 minutes then invert, prick again and apply remaining glaze.

The recipe is from the Bethel Area Health Center's Hearty Happenings cookbook. The cookbook is on sale at the center. Proceeds from sales of the cookbook help to pay for the Health Center's EKG machine.

Smokeless Tobacco and Your Dental Health

by Dr. Maurice J. Convey, D.M.D.

Almost everyone knows the danger of smoking, but many people are not aware of the risks associated with the use of smokeless tobacco products. Every year 31,000 people are diagnosed with some form of oral cancer.

Of these 10,000 prove fatal. In addition to oral cancer, smokeless tobacco causes gum recession which leads to exposed root surfaces. The root surfaces of your teeth are more sensitive to hot and cold, more susceptible to decay, and destruction of the bone surrounding the root will eventually lead to tooth loss.

Most smokeless tobacco products add sugars and other flavorings which directly cause tooth decay.

Considering the amount of time the "pinch" is held in the mouth, and the susceptibility of the root surface to decay, this is an extremely high dose of sugar that will demineralize the teeth both quickly and severely.

A single can of snuff is equal to 60 cigarettes in terms of the amount of nicotine. Many studies indicate that nicotine addiction is stronger with smokeless tobacco than with cigarettes. Each can also contain at least 28 cancer causing agents.

Long time users are at 50 times the risk of developing oral cancer as opposed to nonusers.

When smokeless tobacco is combined with alcohol and/or smoking tobacco, this risk multiplies greatly.

Precancerous lesions often appear in the area where the tobacco is held as reddish and/or whitish patches or sores that may bleed easily and have difficulty healing. The whiteness may vary from a few "spots" to a thick leathery patch. Usually these precancerous lesions are painless or only slightly sore. This makes them difficult to feel. If detected early enough, treatment is usually simple. By the time a lesion becomes painful and is recognized by the tobacco user, treatment may be more extensive. If not treated, these cancers spread throughout the head and neck, or may spread via the bloodstream.

Smokeless tobacco can also affect other parts of your body. Recent studies show a doubling in deaths due to heart attack and stroke when comparing users with nonusers. Chances of lung and other cancers also increase with the use of smokeless tobacco.

An oral cancer exam every six months is essential because early detection by a dental professional makes these lesions easier to treat. In addition, tobacco users eager to quit can see their dentist or physician who may prescribe transdermal nicotine patches or chewing gum.

Massage Therapy

An ancient healing art and a modern health care practice

Janet Willie, Nationally Certified Massage Therapist

The ancient healing art, Massage Therapy, is being rediscovered by people from all walks of life. The hands on manipulation of muscles, soft tissues and our skin is the most effective and therapeutic approach to improve a person's overall health and well being.

The long-respected healing art of Massage has a history of dating back thousands of years. Hippocrates, known as the father of modern medicine wrote, "the physician must be experienced in many things, but most assuredly in rubbing." It is a natural human instinct to rub a sore muscle or to console another by stroking and comforting.

The effectiveness of Massage Therapy comes through a variety of hands-on methods, which benefit your body on a physical, emotional, and mental level. By physically working the muscular and connective systems of the body, blood flow is increased, allowing more oxygen and nutrients to reach the cells and tissues. This brings relief of muscle tension and stiffness, brings greater joint flexibility and range of motion, aids in circulation and lymph flow, and will

systems as well as our thinking processes. Massage Therapy reduces mental stress by accessing the parasympathetic nervous system (PNS). The PNS is our rest and repair system. This action triggers the relaxation response and sends messages to our body to relax, slow down, and to take a deep breath. Massage Therapy will reduce the effects of stress on a person's body and ultimately give the person the ability to respond and think more clearly.

And Massage Therapy most vividly effects our emotional well-being. An increased awareness of our mind-body connection is by far the greatest medicine for your personal health. Through nurturing touch and caring for your self, you enhance your self-image, reduce levels of anxiety, have a greater ease of emotional expression and can more easily attain the sense of inner harmony our body seeks.

Massage Therapy directly effects your mental level by bringing you into a relaxed frame of mind. Stress is an unconscious and automatic response we have to the ups and downs of daily life. Through our sympathetic nervous system (SNS) our body responds to the "stressors" of life by either defending against them, fleeing from them, or freezing (numbing us from the insult to our body). An individual who is under frequent or continual stress will tend to lock into a patterned response. This pattern often times is set into our body's muscular and skeletal

The Truth About Strokes & Chiropractic Care

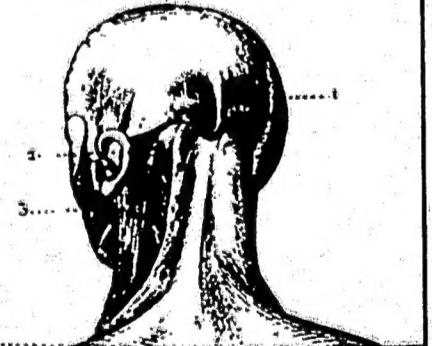

Brought to you by: Dr. Joseph F. DeMarco

How often does chiropractic care cause strokes? All too often according to the claims of a few stroke patients recently interviewed on "20/20" and "The Crusaders." But almost never according to extensive research by the chiropractic profession covering millions of cervical (neck) adjustments and the reported incidence of resulting strokes.

For example Paul Jaskoviak, D.C., D.A.C.A.N. reporting on the National College of Chiropractic Clinics experience during a 15 year period, concluded that 5 million chiropractic treatments were performed without a single case of vertebral artery injury and stroke.

For example Paul Jaskoviak, D.C., D.A.C.A.N. reporting on the National College of Chiropractic Clinics experience during a 15 year period, concluded that 5 million chiropractic treatments were performed without a single case of vertebral artery injury and stroke.

Although these facts aren't the sensational stuff of which TV headlines are made, they should certainly be startling enough to take the worry out of cervical adjustments for even the most cautious of patients.

caught fire in his Paris garage in January. CPS officials traveled to Washington, D.C. in May to accept a Drug Free School Recognition Award from the U.S. Department of Education -- the first school in Maine to receive the award. CPS was one of 90 schools recognized nationwide.

In June, a Telstar Middle School Odyssey of the Mind team placed seventh in their division at the OM world competition at Iowa State University.

In October, CPS teacher Ellen Greene received the Presidential Award for Excellence in Science and Math Teaching. She will travel to Washington, D.C. this spring to pick up the award.

A Rumford Point woman has already made her trek to the nation's capitol. Lisa Chase was the keynote speaker at the Northeast Regional Even Start conference. She participates in the Northern Oxford County Even Start Project, which works with families in Bethel, Dixfield, Canton, Carthage, Peru, Rumford and Mexico.

In July, district officials breathed a collective sigh of relief when Newry voters once again decided to stay in the district.

The town had studied the issue extensively in 1990-91. At the final vote in 1991, a slight majority of voters favored withdrawal, but the vote was far short of the two-thirds majority required by state law to leave the district.

The second time around, Newry voters were not even interested in looking at the issue again. At a sparsely attended meeting in July, townspeople shut down the initiative early in the process, defeating 19-25 a motion to restudy withdrawal.

But nothing to cheer about in test scores

Local youngsters did not do very well in standardized state testing this year, and some school directors began asking why.

School administrators responded by blaming everything from the weather, to "aberrations," to low educational levels among the students' parents (a questionable characterization).

Late in the year there was even a brief attempt to study the possibility of privatizing some district functions, but the study went nowhere.

Maine Educational Assessment tests are given each year to all Maine students in grades four, eight and 11.

In SAD44, the only bright spot among this year's generally poor results were those turned in by the eighth-grade girls.

In five of the six content areas tested, the local girls scored at least 40 points higher than the state average (a difference of 25 points or more is considered to be a significant discrepancy in achievement).

But the boys in that same Telstar Middle School class fared far less well, scoring below the state average in all areas of the test except mathematics and science.

The local boys also scored below their female classmates in all six areas of the test, including mathematics and science, where boys traditionally outscore girls.

The pattern of boys underperforming girls has been a persistent one in SAD44, although not as apparent in recent results as in the first years of MSA testing.

SAD44 boys and girls achieved comparable scores in this year's fourth and 11th grade scores -- with both groups doing poorly.

Local fourth-graders performed well below the state average in six of the seven content areas, and the 11th-graders (this year's seniors) fell below the state average in all six areas in which they were tested.

The 11th-graders' scores also deteriorated significantly from 1990-91, when they took the eighth-grade MEAs.

Strong year-to-year fluctuations are common in the testing, especially when small class sizes are involved. State testing officials regard longer-term comparative scores as a better measure of program effectiveness (the MEAs are designed to evaluate program effectiveness, not individual student achievement).

When viewed in that perspective, SAD44's scores are less bleak.

The three-year average scores for the district's three elementary schools show local fourth-graders to be performing close to the state average.

At Telstar Middle School, the three-year average scores are above the state averages in all areas except mathematics (where they are equal to the state average).

But at Telstar High School, the three-year average scores are now below the state averages in all areas of the test except science (where they are equal).

The cold weather kept skiers away in droves and high winds closed some local lifts.

In the middle of January, as thermometers dropped to minus 40, hundreds of skiers were left stranded as their vehicles refused to turn over, or turned over only long enough to flood. Local garages put in long hours jumping batteries and drying out flooded vehicles.

Some local homeowners also spent chilly days, as kerosene/heating oil mixes in outdoor tanks gelled at the fuel filter. Local heating technicians blamed the federal government for this problem. The feds have mandated low-sulfur kerosene, which seems to freeze quicker than the old mix.

Bethel Water District Superintendent Robert Saunders called the winter "dreadful."

A Maine Rural Water Association spokesman said frost was more than five feet deep in Auburn and as deep as nine feet in Aroostook County.

The Bethel Water District's measurement of ground and water temperatures were the coldest district officials had reported in years.

By the end of February, the district had dealt with a half dozen frozen service lines, well above the usual freeze-up rate.

Along with the cold, the snow continued to fall.

The average snowfall in New England was up 4.9 percent, according to a survey by the National Ski Areas Association.

Snowfall went from an average of 163 inches in 1992-93 (a good snow year by normal standards) to 171 inches in 1993-94.

Sugarloaf USA recorded 210 inches of snow. The average snow through 1991 was 168 inches.

Summer in Western Maine was warm and sunny weather, and the pleasant weather extended far into the fall.

October 1994 was the fifth sunniest in 101 years, according to the National Weather Service in Portland.

The warm weather postponed the opening of Sunday River Ski Resort. In 1993, the resort opened on Oct. 11; this year there were no paying skiers on the mountain until Nov. 10.

Snowfall for the winter of 1994-95 has been spotty so far, despite a prediction by the Farmer's Almanac that snow would come early and often. A few inches had fallen by mid-December, but rain on Dec. 24 all but wiped out a white Christmas.

The rain washed away some of the base at Sunday River, but nighttime temperatures have been low enough to keep the snow guns roaring and the slopes should be white enough to keep holiday skiers happy.

But DEP hot air doesn't move tires

The year at Gordons' tire dump in Greenwood began and ended on a familiar note -- with state officials threatening to close the gate.

About the only thing that has changed on the ground at the site is the number of tires, which DEP officials now estimate at between 1.7 and 2 million.

In February, environmental specialist Michael Parker, of the Department of Environmental Protection told The Citizen he was asking the state Attorney General's Office for an injunction to stop the Gordons from bringing in any more tires.

But the injunction never came, and by July the DEP was considering allowing Peter and Susan Gordon to park more trailers at their Rabbit Road tire dump, and to undertake a number of other upgrades there.

DEP officials said they were not interested in hearing public comments on the matter, or in explaining to townspeople their handling of the dump site.

The DEP licensed the site in 1991, over the vehement protests of Greenwood officials, who argued that the Gordons had chronically violated state environmental safeguards and had shown no evidence of being willing to bring the site into compliance.

By August, town officials attempted to take matters into their own hands, calling for a meeting between state legislators and town selectmen and Planning Board members.

Susan Gordon also attended, and joined in the panel discussion on what could be done to get some of the tires off the Rabbit Road.

DEP officials were invited, but didn't show.

The debate centered on whether or not the Gordons actually had a viable business. Was there money to be made in the tire business beyond disposal and storing fees?

Gordon said there was if she could hook up with the right markets. She agreed work with the Department of Economic and Community Development, which helps businesses find international markets.

The two legislators in attendance agreed to pressure Parker and Al Prysunka of the DEP Hazardous Material and Solid Waste Control Division to come to the group's next meeting.

The arm-twisting worked, and the two were at the group's next meeting in September.

At that meeting, the town and DEP officials agreed to give the Gordons three months to come up with a plan to get rid of some of the tires.

If the couple came up with a plan, they would be given three more months to implement it.

But no plan materialized, and now, in December, DEP officials are again saying they want to shut the gate.

The Gordon's license allows them to cover 30,000 square feet (or three cells) with tires, but at Parker's November 1993 inspection 70,000 feet of ground was covered (or about fours cells over the license).

Parker told The Citizen last week he visited the site about three months ago and again two weeks ago.

"I was surprised at the establishment of two additional cells in 90 days," Parker said. The Gordons now have what amounts to nine cells, he said.

The DEP has sent the paperwork to the state Attorney General's office recommending a court-ordered injunction prohibiting the Gordons from bringing in more tires, Parker said. The DEP would also like to see a judge order the removal of tires from the site, he said.

It will probably be at least a few weeks into the new year before the AG's office acts, or decides not to, on the recommendation, Parker said.

And lots of school sports thrills

The local year in sports had its ups and downs this year, but overall young athletes gave fans plenty to cheer about.

Gould Academy cross-country skiers were untouchable at the Telstar Relays in January, winning by a margin of more than two minutes in the 25-kilometer nordic team event.

Telstar giant slalom skiers were in top form that same month. The Rebel boys won the GS portion of the Mountain Valley Conference Ski Championships, and finished fourth in the MVC slalom race.

Telstar's cross-country team finished fourth in the MVC five-kilometer race. Overall, Telstar took fifth in the MVC with combined scores from alpine and nordic races.

But by fall, Telstar boys were back in the news again.

The soccer team got its 100th win in school history against Dixfield.

Later in the season, Tim Remington broke the school's soccer scoring record in October with the 30th and 31st goals of his career. The previous school record of 29 goals had been held by Tim's older brother, Brant, and by Bruce Barth.

In October, Telstar's young girls' field hockey team put together a season successful enough to get them into the playoffs.

But the No. 7 seeded Rebels couldn't keep up with No. 2 ranked Yarmouth and lost 1-0.

The Telstar Middle School hockey team had better luck. The girls ended their season by beating Mt. Valley Middle School 2-1 in overtime, clinching the Sandy/Andy League Division A championship title.

The middle school boys' soccer team lost their championship game 1-0 to Mt. Blue.

At Gould, the field hockey team handily won the MAISAC championship crown, beating Hebron 3-1.

As 1994 wound down, Telstar's girls' basketball team got a heavy monkey off its back.

Telstar hadn't won a game since the spring of 1992. But earlier this month, the girls beat Lisbon 51-35, snapping a 34-game losing streak.

opted not to play.

Telstar's baseball team did better, ranking second in western Maine Class C and qualifying for the playoffs. The Rebels went into the playoffs on a seven-game winning streak. But a Carrabec pitcher threw what may have been the best game of his career and the Rebels lost 2-0.

portunity to assess their chances of succeeding in a business of their own and plan for their future and their business. Participants of New Ventures training have said: "This course really helped me look before I leap;" "I learned what is necessary for a good record keeping system and how to set it up;" "It was exciting, hard work, fun and successful."

There is no fee for participants. Enrollment is limited. Preference will be given to Displaced Homemakers, single parents and homemakers with a specific business idea. To be considered for the course, an application and interview are required. The application deadline is Feb. 3.

Medicare supplement enrollment

A new federal law is giving certain people who receive Medicare a one-time, six-month open enrollment period in which to apply for any Medicare supplement policy without being refused because of their medical condition.

Medicare is a federal health insurance program for people 65 or older, people of any age with permanent kidney failure, and certain disabled people under 65. Medicare supplement (Medigap) policies are offered by private insurers and are designed specifically to help pay for medical expenses that Medicare covers partially or not at all. Generally, persons are eligible for the Medicare supplement six-month open enrollment period on the first day they are both 65 years old and enrolled in Medicare part B. During an open enrollment period any Medicare supplement insurer must give applicants the choice of any plan they choose that the insurer offers regardless of their medical condition. There are currently 10 plans available with varying benefits, although not all insurers offer all 10 plans.

The new law affects people covered under Medicare who turn 65 between Nov. 5, 1991, and Jan. 1, 1995, and who were not eligible for open enrollment in Medicare supplement policies because they enrolled in Medicare part B before reaching age 65. This law change will primarily affect Medicare recipients who qualified for benefits due to disability. These Medicare recipients will now have a one-time six-month open enrollment period beginning Jan. 1, 1995.

A comparison chart listing Medicare supplement plans, insurers and premiums is available from the Bureau of Insurance 582-8707, the Bureau of Elder and Adult Services 624-5335 and your local Area Agency on Aging.
